BOOK VII CHAPTER I The spring had commenced in all its brilliancy; a storm, that had been lowering all day, went fiercely down upon the hills; the rain drew back into the country; the sun came forth in all its splendour, and upon the dark vapour rose the lordly rainbow. Wilhelm was riding towards it: the sight made him sad. Ah! said he within himself, do the fairest hues of life appear, then, only on a ground of black And must drops fall, if we are to be charmed A bright day is like a dim one, if we look at it unmoved: and what can move us but some silent hope that the inborn inclination of our soul shall not always be without an object The recital of a noble action moves us; the sight of everything harmonious moves us: we feel then as if we were not altogether in a foreign land; we fancy we are nearer the home, towards which our best and inmost wishes impatiently strive. Meanwhile a pedestrian overtook him, and walking with a stout step by the side of the horse, began to keep him company. After a few common words, he looked at the rider and said - If I am not mistaken, I must have already seen you some where. I too remember you, said Wilhelm: had we not some time ago a pleasant sail together Right! replied the other. Wilhelm looked at him more...
